

Explorational Design

Michael Holze is an architect and teaching professor in berlin. His work is focused on new forms of architectural design and presentation, and the interrelation of architecture with media arts and engineering up to Building Information Modeling.

Architecture as a three-dimensional expression of our society presents a social portrait that embodies societal, political, cultural, energetic and economic forces. Is it an art or an engineering, quo vadis architecture in the 21st century?

"Architecture is the reaching out for the truth" (Louis Kahn).
